F and to H, respectively, also the SILVER HELIX) to which the conductors are attached, one may vary the nature of the resulting current very much. These batteries have also a special mechanism in a sliding cylinder or piston for regulating the strength. Grose's, Bunsen's and Daniell's batteries are simply modifications intended to secure permanent and steady activity.

The different qualities of the several currents of the combination battery render them homologous to the forces inherent in the various and different tissues of the body, as well as to various morbid products, and even to extraneous and pathogenetic materials finding place and working mischief therein. Hence by properly individualizing the cure of disease and the currents of electricity, all curable diseases, and many called incurable, whether dynamic merely, or substantial and organic, are amenable to Electro-Therapeutics. The several currents, like analogous drugs, may, however, stimulate each other under varying conditions of the vital factor.

Even with such careful selection of the appropriate currents, excessive use of the same, either in strength, frequency, or duration of treatment, may produce or aggravate the very symptoms which the same currents, used with due caution according to the directions herein given, will cure.

For instance, a certain current being applied strong through a metal surface on the skin for a length of time, develops a burn at the negative. But a short application of the same current, weak, and with a wet napkin between the metal and the
